[London dispatch to the New York World.]
The leading article in Macmillan's Magazine for March is by Gen. Lord Wolseley on that he was the great revolutionary war, that he was no mere leader in a political cine for March is by Gen. Lord Wolseley on Gen. Lee, Gen. Lee is given full credit, for the love he had for the Union and for the struggle he went through before finally taking the decision to go with his own State. Gen. Wolseley describes how Lee accepted his commission as Commander in Chief of all the military forces of Virginia in a crowded convention of the most eminent was of the State, and then draws a parallel and the Confederate armies a month or two men of the State, and then draws a parallel all the Confederate armies a month or two
